WHEELING, W. VA., JUNE 28, 1887.

One Weak Spot in Dr. McGlynn's Armor Until his church endeavored to silence Dr. McGlynn on the land question, he was in full accord with it. As a Catholic and as a priest of that church he dis charged his duties with zeal. When dis agreement arose between him and his Bishop, it arese on the land theories of Mr. George and their advocacy by Dr. McGlynn. That was the point of de-

Engaged in controversy with Archbishop Corrigan, his pricetly functions sus pended for the time, Dr. McGlynn was particular to state on all occasions that he intended to remain to the end of his days a Catholic and a Catholic priest. At that time he declared his confidence in his reinstatement by the Pope. He was going to show the Archbishop that there was more liberality in Rome than in New

But the Pope sent loving letters of confidence to the Archbishop; Dr. McGlynn was aummoned to appear in Rome within forty days: the bolt of excommunication was about to be hurled. Dr. McGlynn who was going to live and die a Catholic and a Catholic pricet, begins to-rip-oper the Pope and the papal court, to denounce Rome's ambition, to ridicule and defy what he calls the ignorant and corrupt Roman machine. It cannot be that the authority of the church, and the character of the men appointed to exercise that authority, have changed in the short time since Dr. Mc-Glynn was proclaiming his undying devotion to the whole establishment. The mere fact that he is on the verge of excommunication cannot have made an intelligent Pope ignorant and stupid, a gentle, God-fearing Pope barbarous and grasping and self-seeking; cannot have so and so entirely transformed the whole motive of the Pope's breathes. If all that Dr. McGlynn, in his flerce denunciations, says of the head of the Roman Catholic church be true, as a man of good conscience knowing these things, he ought to have stopped out before he was thrown out.

Dr. McGlynn cannot escape the well founded conviction that he would have remained in the Catholic church if he had been allowed to go ahead with his land lectures. This being true, he is entitled to no sympathy as a reformer and a

In her letter thanking her people for the kindness with which they treated her and her family in the great Jubileo procession, the Queen speaks of "the labor and anxiety of fifty long years, twentytwo of which were spent in untroubled happiness, shared and cheered by my beloved husband, while an equal number were full of sorrows and trials borne without his sheltering arm and wise help."_

The people of England, more especially the tradesmen of London, have complained that the secluded life of the Queen up. Not even the Tories thought a measure of this kind likely to add much to the glories of the Jubilee celebration." This is a good deal of an admission for Mr. Smalley, who is rather ranged on the Tory side himself. Since the crimes bill is distinctively a Government measure, the Government ought not to have been unwilling for the rest of the world to know what it was doing in the mest important matter of home legislation. That the thing would have had an ugly look about Jubilee time, seems not to have suggested to any of the governmental minds the possibility that it is not fit to be discussed and passed at any

The die is cast, however, and ugly and unboly as the crimes bill is, it will go through a-whooping as a soon as Parliament recovers from the mild intoxication of the Jubilee season. Then the real trouble will begin. "God gave Ire-

The All Important Question.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

Sin:—An article of deep interest appeared in the Intelligencer of the 9th inst, entitled, "What Ought the Republican Convention to Do?" For my part I am decidedly opposed to the adoption by the convention of a prohibition plank into our platform. I am a traveling agent and as such have had an opportunity to interview a number of Republicans in Wirt and adjoining counties, and folly aixty per cent of all the Republicans I have interviewed declare their intention to vote against the prohibition amendment. The Republican party must, if it over expects to get control of West Virginia, do something to favor the whisky men. I am opposed to whisky myself, but these are my views as I see them now. I would like to hear from the readers of the Intelligencer upon this important subject.
